I am a long time investor using stocks and options to enhance my retirement. Your proposed rule change would damage my over all return on my capital. The change to IRA regulations would place a financial burden that would be unjust to any one who uses options as a means of generating retirement income.

I understand option trading is not for every one , no one is forced to trade options. This is a free market choice made by investors who understand the risk vs. reward and are willing to accept the results.

If your new rule is applied I will lose use of TD Ameritrade support information and a greater burden will be placed upon me to make informed decisions.

Please leave us alone! I did not ask for any government interference in my financial future.
